Q: Cannot remove all files after moving them to an external storage drive I had a storage drive I had formatted to store files. I used this drive to create a directory and store some files. After some days I realised I had moved the files to the drive. Now I want to remove the directory I created. I get a message saying the directory is not empty. In the first step, I tried to remove the files that I moved to the drive. The "rm" commands worked. In the second step, I tried to remove the directory itself (using the command "rm -r directory") but I get the message: "rm: cannot remove directory [directory name]: Directory not empty" What should I do to remove it? Thanks A: you want to use the rmdir command instead. Also, if the directory was made using mkdir try the -p parameter (mkdir -p directoryname)

A systematic review of research on the perceived needs of urban Indigenous adults. This study aims to review the Australian and international literature on urban Indigenous peoples' perceptions of their current and future needs for health care and health service delivery. A systematic review of the literature was conducted using the Preferred Reporting Items for Systematic Reviews and Meta-Analyses (PRISMA) guidelines. Seven databases were searched from January 1999 to August 2017 for research published in English about the perceived needs of urban Indigenous adults. Seven research studies were included. These studies investigated the perceived needs of Indigenous people in four domains: human health, Indigenous peoples' legal rights, public health and
